SUMMARY

- The fund returned +0.42% in October (EUR hedged share class +0.23%)
- At portfolio level, the best performing sectors were Basic Materials (+0.83%), Consumer Non-cyclical (+0.66%) and Utilities (+0.47%), though all sectors finished in the green
- President Trump's visit to Asia was marked by considerable de-escalation on tariffs, most notably with China, but with trade progress with other countries such as South Korea, Malaysia and Vietnam also
- The Fed cut rates, though this was paired with more hawkish messaging about further cuts in the near term
- On balance, we think there is a good chance of another cut in December (markets pricing a 70% probability), and we expect a generally benign environment for credit spreads, given corporate earnings remain strong.
- The fund currently yields 4.95% in USD, 4.95% in GBP, 2.93% in EUR and 0.73% in CHF

FUND UPDATE AND OUTLOOK

The fund returned +0.42% in October (EUR hedged share class +0.23%).

President Trump's visit to Asia was marked by considerable de-escalation on tariffs, most notably with China, but with trade progress with other countries such as South Korea, Malaysia and Vietnam also. The Fed cut rates, though this was paired with more hawkish messaging about further cuts in the near term.

At portfolio level, the best performing sectors were Basic Materials (+0.83%), Consumer Non-cyclical (+0.66%) and Utilities (+0.47%), though all sectors finished in the green. The best performing bonds were Cleveland-Cliffs (+1.28%), Rexel (+1.03%) and Tesco (+0.94%). On the ESG front, SocGen was upgraded from AA to AAA and Rolls Royce from BBB to A by MSCI due to historical controversies sufficiently far in the past to drop out of MSCI's methodology, leaving the present-day companies ranking amongst the highest in their peer groups for business ethics. Tencent was upgraded from BBB to A due to improved talent management practices. The fund retained its AA rating from MSCI ESG overall.

5Yr US Treasury yields fell -5bps to 3.68%, 5Yr

German Bund yields fell -8bps to 2.23% and 5Yr UK Gilt yields fell -25bps to 3.88%. 3-5Yr investment grade bonds in USD gained +0.57% (spreads unchanged at 27). US high yield rose +0.16% (spreads +9bps to 280), European high yield rose 0.08% (spreads unchanged at 271), and UK high yield gained +0.64% (spreads +9bps to 443).

With the US government shutdown extending beyond one month, it will be hard for the FOMC to get a good read on inflation and the labour market by their final meeting of the year in December. The cooling of the US/China trade war should support the resumption of disinflation in goods, however there were signs of an uptick in services inflation in previous releases. On balance, we think there is a good chance of another cut in December (markets pricing a 70% probability), and we expect a generally benign environment for credit spreads, given corporate earnings remain strong.

The fund currently yields 4.95% in USD, 4.95% in GBP, 2.93% in EUR and 0.73% in CHF.
